and so all the children were feet set 'round his knee.
He taught them truths that their minds longed to hear, and then He showed them faith that dis-march velous prayer; the world has never known what was solved all their fear. He said he would leave, but seen and heard there. And no tongue can speak, and when He saw their tears, He said, "Bring your sick, blind and no one's hand can write. His wonderful, beautiful withered ones here."
